WILSON BLESSED VERY MANY TIMES

President Wilson was given the lion's share of the credit for the passage of the Child Labor bill by Representative Edward Keating, sponsor of the measure, in a statement to the Chicago Journal, which has consistently advocated this form of Federal legislation.

"The mothers of the land," said Mr. Keating, "blessed the President when he kept up out of war with Europe, their prayers ascended to heaven in his behalf when he proposed a peaceful solution to the Mexican difficulty, and now from Maine to California, they are calling on God to safeguard him because he has become the emancipator of children in industry."

ALCOHOL AND HARD LUCK

The worst thing about alcohol is not that it gets a man down, but that it keeps him down.

"Hard luck" frequently gets a man down, but it cannot keep them there. "Hard luck" is a clumsy wrestler and a real man soon finds that his grasp is uncertain and, watching for the opportunity, pins his shoulders to the mat and rises triumphantly.

The grip of alcohol is not feeble; it is not uncertain. Always it is becoming firmer, more powerful. There is never a moment of respite in which the victim may hope to throw off the drink with comparative ease. Ever tighter grows the grasp of John Barleycorn once he has gripped a man; ever heavier becomes the weight that presses down, down, down.

The combat with hard luck may even strengthen the nature; the combat with alcohol weakens and deteriorates.

FOR THE INFORMATION OF THE PUBLIC:

The Railroads' statement of their position on the threatened strike, as presented to the President of the United States

A strike on all the railroads of the country has been called by the Brotherhoods for 7 o'clock Monday morning, September 4.

This strike was ordered from Washington while the President of the United States was making every effort to avert the disaster.

The Final Railroad Proposal

The final proposal made by the railroads for a peaceful settlement of the controversy, but which was rejected by the brotherhoods, was as follows:

(a) The railroads will, effective September 1, 1916, keep the time of all men represented in this movement, upon an 8 hour basis and by separate account, monthly, with each man, maintain a record of the difference between the money actually earned by him on the present basis and the amount that would have been earned upon an 8 hour basis—overtime on each basis to be computed pro rata.

(b) The amounts so shown will be subject to the decision of the Commission, provided for in Paragraph (c) of this memorandum and payable in money, as may be directed by said Commission in its findings and decision.

(c) The Interstate Commerce Commission to supervise the keeping of these accounts and report the increased cost of the 8 hour basis, after such period of decision.

Statement of Executives to the President

In submitting this proposal to the President, the fifty railroad executives called to Washington and representing all the great arteries of traffic, made this statement to him of their convictions:

OVERLOOKED MAIN POINT

An aged negro was crossing-tender at a spot where an express train made quick work of a buggy and its occupants. Naturally, he was the chief witness, and the entire case hinged upon the energy with which he had displayed his warning signal.

A grueling cross-examination left Rastus unshaken in his story. Later the division superintendent complimented him on the steadfastness with which he stuck to his story.

"You did wonderfully, Rastus," he said. "I was afraid at first you might waver in your testimony."

"Nossir, nossir," Rastus exclaimed. "But I done feared every minutes that ere durn alwyer was a-gwine to ask me if mah lantern was lit."

and expressly declares that the land may carry such liens and assessments in addition to the mortgage incumbrance.

I trust that I have made clear the intent of the law. I also trust that you will feel that my assurance given to you whiel the law was under discussion that its benefits would be open to such of your constituents as may own lands with Government irrigation projects with unpaid assessments but who hold the title to their land, is fully warranted by the language quoted.

In conclusion, permit me to say that I appreciate the interest you manifested in the drafting of this great law and assure you that it has been a pleasure to have been associated with you in this great labor.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) RALPH W. MOSS,
M. C. Fifth District Indiana.

PROJECT FARMERS MAY BORROW ON LANDS

same section the law declares: "every borrower shall by express covenant in his mortgage undertake to pay when due all taxes, liens, judgments or assessments which may lawfully be assessed against the land mortgaged." This section in the law carefully differentiates between liens and assessments made under forms of law and that form of security for debt which we denominate a "mortgage,"

The railroads are unwilling to pay the increased cost of an eight-hour day for the trainmen. They are perfectly willing for the people to pay it, however. They demonstrate again it is the people who "pay the freight."

TO BE GLAD WHEN YOUR BROTHER
men are prosperous and happy, to rejoice in their success, to cheer for their victories, to be compassionate and pitiful when your brother men are distressed and miserable, to grieve over their failures, to help them in their troubles—this is the fraternal spirit which blesses him who exercises it, and those toward whom it is exercised.—Henry Van Dyke.

SIMILAR TO ARIZONA

Prohibition among the miners of West Virginia has given splendid results. There is still some illegal selling among the miners, but if the adjoining states of Ohio and Kentucky were dry this would be entirely done away with. So far as the miners in this state are concerned, if another vote were taken on prohibition the majorities for the dries would be very much larger than when the last vote was taken.—Mr. Cairns, District, 17, United Mine Workers of America.
